“Access to Early English Books Online (EEBO) provides a classic example of how new technology can rejuvenate traditional research. Extending access to the resource has fundamentally changed the way all of us can manage and maintain first-class scholarly research.”
— Justin Champion, Professor of the History of Ideas, Royal Holloway, University of London

“Early access to 125,000 books, microfilmed over 70 years from more than 200 libraries worldwide, make available online by ProQuest, EEBO is now one of the most successful research tools ever produced and it is used by scholars and students in over 7,000 institutions worldwide. No other resource for early modern scholarship is as comprehensive as Early English Books Online. Aims to capture, display, and provide digital images of all the books listed in three key bibliographic records of English literature: The Short-Title Catalogue (Pollard & Redgrave, 1475-1640); The Short-Title Catalogue II (Wing, 1641-1700); The Thomson Tracts; and the Early English Books Text Supplements, as well as original signatures, complete, visual scores, prayers books and other intriguing primary sources.
